Many items on Clifford Agenda

by Theresa Opeka

A new location for a senior center and the addition of clothing bins to collect clothing were among some of the items discussed at the Tuesday, March 12 Clifford Township Supervisors meeting. Supervisor Chris Marcho said the Lenoxville Senior Center will be moving to the township building soon. They will meet once a week and may extend to more days in the future. Supervisor Barry Searle said they may look into having a community garden for them. Supervisor Dennis Knowlton said, "It is a real nice opportunity for them, especially in the spring and summer. They will also have the walking trails."

GENERATOR

Marcho said the generator for the township building is up and running. Knowlton made a motion to approve a service contract for maintenance at $250 a year. All voted in favor. Motion passed. The supervisors said they will hold off on purchasing an extended warranty.

GAS PIPELINE PERMIT

In old business, it was confirmed that there were no physical changes to the Tennessee Gas Pipeline Permit Modification Application, but just a change in verbiage.

PLANNING COMM.

The supervisors voted in favor of approving Joe Laguzzi as a planning commission member.

DONATION

The supervisors voted in favor of donating $250 to the Susquehanna County Conservation District's Envirothon, being held May 3 at Elk Mountain Ski Resort.

STOP SIGNS STOLEN

Stop signs were stolen from Abbott Road and will be replaced.

TRUCK PURCHASE

Marcho said the truck they wanted to purchase will take six to seven months to get and another four months to outfit. He said they aren't sure they will get it and are looking into other options.

HIST. SOC. DONATION

The supervisors voted in favor of donating $2,000 of Act 13 funds to the Historical Society to complete the walkway at the Children's Garden.

CAD SYSTEM

The fire company has a new CAD system for responses.

TRAIL TOWN

Cindy Klenk, The Greater Carbondale of Commerce, commented that the supervisors "have an amazing thing here." The township was recently honored with an award from the chamber. Klenk mentioned the concept of a Trail Town, which was started in towns from Pittsburgh to Maryland. She said all of the towns have made a comeback and it brings a lot of money in.

ROAD ISSUES

Marcho said he, Searle, Secretary Joan Hertzog and Road Master Kurt Booths met with PennDOT about road issues in the township and said it was a good meeting. A man in the audience asked that a four-way stop sign replace the blinking light downtown because of how the trucks speed through the hill. Searle said Booths can talk with PennDOT's Ed Sumtani about it.

SALVATION ARMY

Hertzog said the Salvation Army approached the township about putting small bins in the hallway in the township building but Parks and Recreation said there wasn't enough room for them. Instead, they are looking to put two larger bins outside the building and they will be emptied on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Marcho suggested putting them out by the propane tank and Searle suggested by the bathrooms. Larry Wilson said he recommended a three-month trial period. Knowlton asked if they already have them in town. Others said it was from a different company. The supervisors voted in favor of trying them for a trial period.

BEST SUPERVISORS

Jim Pettinato praised the supervisors, "You are the best supervisors we have ever had. We had two supervisors that wanted to hook us up with the Crystal Lake Sewer System. We would have been involved with Greenfield Township. Then, we got Dennis (Knowlton)." Knowlton replied, "We also have good people. Thank you." Wilson thanked the supervisors for the removal of derelict mobile homes. Knowlton said, "We started picking up garbage along the road." Marcho replied, "And look where we are now."

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, April 9 at 7pm.
